DUBBO REGIONAL CYCLING FACILITY

88 River St DUBBO

The Dubbo Cycle Club may lay claim to being one of the oldest cycling clubs in New South Wales, with a rich heritage of both road and track racing that dates back to 1884 in one incarnation or another. Being situated over 400 kilometers east of Sydney and just recently as 2019 moved into a new facility, The Dubbo Cycle Club has a distinguished history and complemented with professional coaches to provide the best support for your participation in Cycling at all levels.

THE FIRST BICYCLE RACE in Dubbo is dated fairly accurately by the construction of the new Post Office proceeding in the background. John Diehl is reported to have owned the first bicycle and a club was started in 1885 when there were seven of the "penny farthings" in town. Charley Bennett, of Bennett and Wood, never missed a race meeting and George Roth, who competed at the first meeting in Dubbo, became a champion cyclist and won the Champion Austral Wheel Race at Melbourne. In the foreground, members of the town band, some in Lodge Regalia, line up for the cameraman; presumably before heralding the first race.
